PREFATORY NOTE.

Lewin, in his 'Manual of Tibetan,' 1879, preface, states: "Tibet and its language are still comparatively unknown.... the familiar tongue of the people, their folk-lore, songs and ballads are all unknown."

Far from contradicting this saying, Jäschke, the greatest Tibetan scholar of his time, stated two years later, in 1881, in the preface to the third edition of his Tibetan Dictionary: "(To) the student who has for immediate object to learn how to read and write the Tibetan language.... existing dictionaries (are) almost if not quite useless."

Since Jäschke's third edition; two new Tibetan dictionaries have appeared. Walsh in an article in the J.A.S.B., Vol 72, Pt. 1, n. 2, 1903, reviewing the last one of these, the one by Sarat Chandra Das, says, p. 78: "Although the present Dictionary has fulfilled what it purposed to be, namely, a complete Dictionary of literary Tibetan, so far as our present sources of knowledge go, it does not fulfil the requirements of a standard dictionary of the entire language, and the standard dictionary of the modern and current Tibetan language has yet to be written."

Laufer, 'Roman einer Tibetischen Königin,' 1911, p. 27 et seq., says: "We have here to open a road through the jungles, unaided and by ourselves; we have to work through text after text and note down expressions and idioms as we meet them," etc.

Grünwedel in 'Padmasambhava' und Verwandtes,' 1912, pp. 9-10, endorses Laufer's remarks and adds about the difficulty of translating from Tibetan: "Ignorance regarding the subject-matter, mistakes and misunderstandings in the text itself, and, finally, the insufficiently explored idiomatic element of the language, of which the history is as yet poorly known, these are the main shoals... Of all the dictionaries only Jäschke's has really achieved something in the matter of idiom."

As a matter of fact the printed materials available for the home student do not at present enable him, if without the help of a native teacher, to translate, accurately and without skipping the difficulties, any modern Tibetan book (not even the so-called Tibetan Primers in use in Darjeeling) if such books do not happen to belong to those excerpted in the existing dictionaries. Jäschke's, which is the best from this point of view, mentions only 25 titles of texts used as his sources. Comparing this with the more than 1000 titles quoted by Skeat as the sources for the material for his Etymological Dictionary of the English language we at once see the inadequacy of such material in the case of Tibetan.

It is true that at present more showy results can be obtained by the wholesale translation of texts (more with a view to making known their general contents, than to the furnishing of a precise philological, lexicographical and grammatical analysis), and it is certain that the results of such work of translation would be more attractive and interesting to the wider public. Yet one of the most valuable contributions towards laying a sound basis for future Tibetan scholarship is the painstaking, laborious and to a certain extent inglorious and humdrum drudging away at small texts with scrupulous attention to the smallest minutiae, for a secure fixing of illustrative examples by co-ordinating correctness of text, full discussion of meanings, sharp formulation of definitions and subtle analysis of all questions and problems involved.

The following essay is a first contribution towards an attempt to serve such an ideal.

I. THE SONG OF THE EASTERN SNOW MOUNTAIN.

A. INTRODUCTION.

In his 'Mythologie des Buddhismus,' Grünwedel gives on p. 59 the figures of a triad of famous reformers of lamaism; Rje Rin po ch'e, better known as Tson k'a pa, and his two pupils, Rgyal ts'ab rje and Mk'as grub rje. On pp. 70-72 he gives biographical notes concerning the three, and indicates their place and historical importance in lamaism. Günther Schulemann, in 'Die Geschichte der Dalailamas,' gives in chapters II and III a complete compilation of what is known about these three.

In the modern Dge lugs pa sect their historical importance has never been lost sight of and their memory is kept green by a universal prayer or invocation, still in daily use, opening and closing every ceremony in a Dge lugs pa monastery. In preceding a ceremony it runs as follows:—

मियायः स्वरं स्वर

To the repairer of the Tibetan vehicle, Tson k'a pa (the Onionlander),

To the true, strong, wise Lord Rgyal ts'ab rje (Noble Throne-prince),

To the sūtra and mantra teaching master Mk as grub rje (Noble Cleverness-perfection)

To these three victorious (illustrious) Father and Sons (Family of three), obeisance!

In closing the ceremony the words AIJAIAAII are changed into AIAIII ANIAII, 'may their blessing be on us,' may they bless us.'

When the monks meet for ANA'E', collective or communal fea drinking, the last three words are changed into ASS'A' we give our offering, said before drinking the first cup and whilst sprinkling a few drops in libation with two fingers, the thumb and fourth finger of the right hand. At the termination of tea drinking nothing is said at all. Except for these changes the formula remains the same for all occasions.

Another pupil of Tson k'a pa was his own nephew Dge hdun grub, about whom further particulars are given in the same passages of the two works cited above, and who may be called the first Dalai Lama, though not known by that title but by that of Rgyal ba, or conqueror. Yet it will be seen from the above formula that the three who are together called way 지지 'father and sons,' that is Tson k'a pa and his two spiritual sons or pupils, are all three called 회자고'. The expression 따디지자 has no doubt to be understood as a collective word like 'group,' 'family,' just like 각자' means 'parents.'

From this ५११६५ मुद्र a small poem in praise of his teachers, the १५१६५ has come to us, which we now publish. Of अवस्थापुर है it is said that he founded a formal cult of his teacher Tson k'a pa, and it may be that his devotional attitude found a reflection in this poem, showing the attitude taken by his own pupil towards him and his two other teachers in his turn.

This poem occurs in a miscellaneous collection of religious matter (said to comprise about 150 leaves), in a work ('Religious Practice'), leaves 59, 60. I have not been able to see a complete copy of this work. In this edition, complete in fairly correct and clearly legible. A small edition, complete in itself. of which I possess two copies (not quite so legible), offers several different readings which nearly all seem quite as good, and some decidedly better, than those of the larger edition. The differences shown by the two texts are, relatively to the size of the poem, so numerous and of such a nature as to preclude the idea that mere copying can have led to them. One is led to the conclusion that one of the two texts was produced

We shall note from memory and not by actual copying. the variants furnished by the larger edition, marking them B. whilst following for our own text, with one exception, duly noted, the smaller edition  $\Lambda$ . My two copies of the smaller edition would seem to be prints from the same blocks but for some difference in the last page. Whether the other pages are printed from the same blocks, whilst only this one last block has been, for one reason or another, renewed (and changed in the process) may be left undiscussed for the moment. to make the general statement that great care should always be exercised before pronouncing Tibetan prints as made or not made from the same blocks, and that, indeed, interesting observations may be made on Tibetan typographical practices.

The title & Tibet, and tribet, and indicates, like  $\overline{x_1}$   $\overline{\overline{x_1}}$  (as in J. Dict., p. 273b, but not as on p.

XXI a), a religious miscellany. The particular and from which our poem is taken is said to be one of the text-books which the Tashilhunpo tapas are required to learn by heart. The book with the same title which Laufer (Verzeichniss der Tib. Handschr. etc. zu Dresden, Z.D.M.G., 1901, p. 123, n. 135) mentions, might or might not be the same. As I have not been able to examine the title pages and final pages of the book, I cannot give any further information about it.

Another Gelukpa prayer of almost equal popularity and frequency as those of the one quoted above, is the following which may be used as an alternative to the former one. It is distinguished from it in that not the খ্বে'মুহা'নাহ্যুর', but Tson k'a pa alone is invoked in it. It runs:—

र्ज्ञमाश्रास्त्रिम् हे मित्रे मित्रे के मुक्त रहा मिनाशा र्दे सेर् सिंद सिंद राष्ट्र राष्ट्र राष्ट्र सिंद सिंद सिंद राष्ट्र राष नर्द्र-त्युद्दार्थाः स्वसार्वे स्वर्तान्य स्वर्तान्य । चीटश.कर्थ.भ्रोपश.तपुं.चिष्ट्चा.च्येत्र.कूट्.पि.ता। हुँ च हर मी बारा तपु . खेरा राजा हा जा न दे राजा

To the unfathomable great treasury of love, the Down-Looking-One (Chenresi, Avalokiteshvara),

MINOR TIBETAN TEXTS.

To the immaculate Lord of knowledge, Sweet-voice (Jamyang, Mañjughosha),

"To the subduer of the hosts of devils without exception, the Master of Mysteries (Chanadorje, Vajrapāṇi),

To that crown-jewel of Fibetan sages, Tson k'a pa,
To the feet of that (or: thee, o!) Famous Goodheart (Lozangtakpa, Sumatikīrti), we pray.

The chief difference between the use of the two prayers is that the latter is more in private use, whilst the former is more favoured in what may be called official meetings and collective acts of worship. The latter prayer is often used in a manner like the 'Om mani padme hūm' formula, and cases in which a devotee vowed to recite this prayer once or more times a 100,000 times are known. The practical purpose of the latter prayer was thus defined by a Tibetan:

र्ये क्षेत्र वे के स्पेट के के स्पेट के सेट के स्पेट के

in (this present, earthly) life: health, happiness, absence of sickness, and longevity—and at the time of death a happy mind and a firm hold on (grasp of) religion

The above form of the prayer is the printed one which is used by the monks to read aloud, mechanically and repeatedly as a sort of prayer-litany, together with other similar matter, for the benefit of their clients, or also to ensure their own salvation. It is said to occur in a prayer-book called 572 25.

ह्रान्त्र, which I have not seen myself and about which I have no further details.

This prayer has also some variations in its final line (after the words न्निहास्त्रे) according to circumstances. This line ends, when:

Opening a ceremony: প্রাথ্য প্রাথ্য বিশ্বর প্রাথ্য বিশ্বর প্রথ

Closing .. ,, : প্রশানীরামানীধার্মীনা

Before tea : ক্মামা( or বু.) মার্ক্র্রিয়ার বুঝা

After ,, : nothing at all is said.

It is interesting to note that one of my informants interprets the above formula as indicating that Tson k'a pa is the The closing verse of our poem is also a prayer to Tson k'a pa. It is also in use elsewhere than in connection with the present booklet and occurs elsewhere in print as well. My informant ascribes it to Gendundub himself and thinks that its wider use has spread from this booklet, though he cannot definitely assure that Gendundub himself did not appropriate it for the closing lines of his poem, taking an already current prayer to Tson k'a pa. The latter theory is plausible inasmuch as the last verse is seven-footed as against the eight-footed lines of the rest of the poem. Anyhow, the statement that this prayer also refers to Tson k'a pa alone, and is as such used and understood by all Gelukpa monks, settles a doubt we might otherwise entertain as to whether it is not addressed to the way and in the plural.

As to the edition, in the original the verses are not marked; they are evidently four-lined. The small edition has no divisions at all, except marking the lines, but the larger edition has in addition a ** (**TNN** = snake head) after lines 16 and 48. In my own text and translation I have by typographical disposition and by the introduction of title headings indicated my conception of the clever and very logical inner structure of the poem.

The text is followed by a short discussion of the variants in it, next by a translation, and then, my main business, by a full lexicographical discussion, in alphabetical order. This embodies in the first place all the new material, supplementing, amplifying, modifying, or even only questioning, the data in Jäschke's Dictionary. 3rd edition. For this Dictionary is, as far as lexicographical method is concerned, still superior to all other, even subsequent, Tibetan dictionaries, however much valuable and additional matter may be contained in the two latter. Jäschke's dictionary is as yet the proper starting point for all future lexicographical research. In this glossary I have also drawn special attention to contradictions in these three current dictionaries, those of Jäschke, Desgodins and Sarat Chandra Das, even to such points for which I myself have not been able to suggest a solution or about which I could not bring new material. For the good of future lexicographical work in the Tibetan field, it is very necessary to point out as many as possible of the numerous existing discrepancies and uncertainties (especially relating to fifter shades of discrimination and precision) so as to focus the attention of investigators on them. It is unavoidable that most of this work can only be suitably undertaken on the spot in consultation with educated, intelligent Tibetans, and not in European closets. The number of those in a position to undertake such research will, for a long time to come, remain limited enough. As indicated in the subtitle of this essay my own main object in writing it is primarily a lexicographical one. For this reason I have also incorporated in my glossary notes on side-issues and all sorts of incidental idiomatic 'catches' which cropped up in the discussion of our text, though not immediately connected with the poem itself.

As it seemed the handiest way to present all the results of my investigation I have also embodied all commentatorial matter, the philological notes as distinct from the lexicographical ones, under the same alphabet. The few syntactical remarks have also been wedged in in this list, though in their case the 'Stichwort' had to be chosen more or less at haphazard.

In the matter of oral information and illustrative examples embodied in this paper, my authorities are nearly exclusively my two Tibetan teachers Skarma Bsam Gtan Paul and P'un Ts'ogs Lung Rtogs. The first is a native of Ghoom, though of pure Tibetan extraction (K'ams). He has resided for nearly a year in Lhasa, for another 3 months in Tashilhunpo (where he was Tibetan interpreter between the Tashi Lama and Capt. R. Steen. I M.S.), and for 4 years in Gyangtse. The second is a native of Lhasa, where he resided till his 18th year, after which he spent 3 years in Tashilhunpo as a tapa. Then he wandered for 12 years through Tibet, Sikkhim and Nepal, after which he settled in Ghoom since about 1914. Until recently he was there schoolmaster (dge rgan) in the local Tibetan monastery.

Both these intelligent men have given me the greatest help in long, patient and painstaking discussions concerning the lexicographical and other problems presented by this present text, as well as by several others, which I hope I will be able to publish and discuss from time to time in the future.

C. THE VARIANTS.

The texts used were two small blockprints, nearly identical A 1 and A 2, and a large blockprint B.

On the whole A furnishes a good text and it may be used as the basis for the edition. Two curious cases of the use of  $\mathbf{z}$  for  $\mathbf{z}$  (7. 45) seem more than mere negligence of the wood-

l. 47 A 2 ন; l. 48 A 2 ব্ৰুম: l. 48 B has ¥ at the end of the line instead of ||; l. 49 B মুন; Colophon, A 2 has no ১5' after ৰুপ্ৰমা, and has a final মা to আনুম্মা. B has a different colophon বুই মুন্দুৰ সুমান্ত্ৰিম আই মুন্দুৰ যুগ্ cutter in connection with the badly printed  $\Box Q$  in 1. 13 (which looks also like  $\Box Q$ ) and also a  $\Box P$  like  $\Box P$  in 1. 23. Inversely there is a clear  $\Box P$ — $\Box P$   $\Box P$ —in 1. 37 and a  $\Box P$  for  $\Box P$  in 1. 48 A 2 twice lacks the hook in Z (20 24) and the naro in lines 29, 47. These two latter variants may be due to deterioration in the blocks or the roughness of the paper, or defective inking. Otherwise A 1 and A 2 are practically identical, and except for the last pages (the last two of A 1 are condensed into a single one in A 2) the two copies may have been printed from the same blocks.

In 5 B writes क्रिट यहें for बहे as authorised by the Dicts.

But the question of final particles is still far from being satisfactorily settled. The Dicts are on the whole much at variance on this point. Desg. gives as a rule a greater variety of them than J.

Some differences in the tenses of the verb are presented by the two copies of A on one side and B on the other. In 1.2

क्रुन, is the present tense as against the past form प्रक्रून in A

As to the sense both would do, and though the past form in Tibetan is better rendered in English by the present we may understand the past form as 'has begun to rise.' In verse XI B gives imp. forms, making the sense one of command whereas

A has present forms giving a mere statement. The final 31 in NEW, however, is not recorded in the Dicts., nor the form MEN; MAY, however, is a regularly recognised imp. form.

(without an initial  $\mathbf{Q}^$ ) as in B is not recorded. though  $\mathbf{Q}$  present, might do equally well.  $\mathbf{Q}$ , 1. 32, is not authorized by the Dicts. which all omit the initial  $\mathbf{Q}^$ . The substitution of  $\mathbf{Q}$ , for  $\mathbf{Q}$ ,  $\mathbf{Q}$

though J. records a $\alpha \beta \b

The remaining variants are all in the nature of equivalents for or against which nothing (or the same!) can be said, and which would do as well as the readings we have adopted. Many of them are, however, curious for this reason, that they are not homonymous variants at all and consequently substitutions for, not corruptions of, the text. We have to leave the question alone whether those in A or in B are likely to be the original ones.

In 7. $\frac{1}{2}\text{1}\text{2}\text{3}\text{1}\text{2}\text{3}\text{3}\text{1}\text{2}\text{3}\text{3}\text{1}\text{2}\text{3}\text{3}\text{1}\text{3}\text{3}\text{1}\text{3}\text{3}\text{4}\text{3}\text{4}\text{3}\text{4}\text{4}\text{5}\text{4}\text{4}\text{5}\text{4}\text{4}\text{5}\text{4}\text{4}\text{5}\text{4}\text{4}\text{5}\text{4}\text{4}\text{5}\text{4}\text{4}\text{5}\text{4}\text{5}\text{4}\text{5}\text{4}\text{5}\text{4}\text{5}\text{4}\text{5}\text{4}\text{5}\text{4}\text{5}\text{4}\text{5}\text{5}\text{4}\text{5}\text{5}\text{4}\text{5}\text{5}\text{5}\text{4}\text{5}\text{5}\text{5}\text{4}\text{5}\text{5}\text{5}\text{5}\text{5}\text{5}\text{5}\text{5}\text{5}\text{5}\text{5}\text{5}\text{5}\text{5}\text{5}\text{5}\text{5}\text{5}\text{5}\text{5}\text{5}\text{5}\text{5}\text{5}\text{5}\text{5}\text{5}\text{5}\text{5}\text{5}\text{5}\text{5}\text{5}\text{5}\text{5}\text{5}\text{5}\text{5}\text{5}\text{5}\text{5}\text{5}\text{5}\text{5}\text{5}\text{5}\text{5}\text{5}\text{5}\text{5}\text{5}\text{5}\text{5}\text{5}\text{5}\text{5}\text{5}\text{5}\text{5}\text{5}\text{5}\text{5}\text{5}\text{5}\text{5}\text{5}\text{5}\text{5}\text{5}\text{5}\text{5}\text{5}\text{5}\text{5}\text{5}\text{5}\text{5}\text{5}\text{5}\text{5}\text{5}\text{5}\text{5}\text{5}\text{5}\text{5}\text{5}\text{5}\text{5}\text{5}\text{5}\text{5}\text{5}\text{5}\text{5}\text{5}\text{5}\text{5}\text{5}\text{5}\text{5}\text{5}\text{5}\text{5}\text{5}\text{5}\text{5}\text{5}\text{5}\text{5}\text{5}\text{5}\text{5}\text{5}\text{5}\text{5}\text{5}\text{5}\text{5}\text{5}\text{5}\text{5}\text{5}\text{5}\text{5}\text{5}\text{5}\text{5}\text{5}\text{5}\text{5}\text{5}\text{5}\text{5}\text{5}\text{5}\text{5}\text{5}\text{5}\text{5}\text{5}\text{5}\text{5}\text{5}\text{5}\text{5}\text{5}\text{5}\text{5}\text{5}\text{5}\text{5}\text{5}\text{5}\text{5}\text{5}\text{5}\text{5}\text{5}\text{5}\text{5}\text{5}\text{5}\text{5}\text{5}\text{5}\text{5}\text{5}\text{5}\text{5}\text{5}\text{5}\text{5}\text{5}\text{5}\text{5}\text{5}\text{5}\tex

'sin'; similarly in 45 and 49 75 'all,' for $33 'many.'

Lastly, the difficult construction 35 75 75, in 46, is replaced in B by the easier 35 75 75, 'not allowing (letting, making) it [the soul] (to) fall' instead of 'letting it remain fallen when once it has done so.'

All these examples seem to point out that one of the block-prints (probably the larger one) was derived from a version which was not actually copied from the original but rather written down from memory. The variants are no cutting or copying mistakes except and saving and saving in 1.7.

In 1. 26 we find an erroneous 3c for 3c

The two $\frac{2}{3}$ at the end of lines 16 and 48 in B (or rather at the beginning of the following lines, for that is where they must be put if the Tibetau text is printed line for line like English verse) do not agree with my conception of the structure of the poem as indicated by my typographical arrangement of it. I would not have expected a $\frac{2}{3}$ after line 16 but after lines 12. 24, 36 and 48. The occurrence of the sign after line 48 may, however, be taken to indicate that the next two verses have to be regarded as appendices to the body of the poem proper.

It must be mentioned that in the title, in both copies of A., the final word is TATAL In B., as the poem occurs in the body of the volume, there is no equivalent title. I have written TATAL without prejudice to the question whethere the form TATAL is legitimate or not. My teachers say that before a 11 the X is required.

The only reading taken from B is TXI for the incomprehensible TXI of A 1 and 2, in line 16.

It may be, finally, remarked that the three copies from which this edition was prepared, show once more that textual correctness and perfection of typographical execution are not necessarily related in Tibet. The two small prints which are, 'but for the single omission of a dengbu in line 16, quite correct, are small, badly printed on bad paper, and not carefully or neatly cut. The larger copy is neat, well printed on good paper, very legible, but not nearly so satisfactory as a text.

D. TRANSLATION.

The Song of the Eastern Snow Mountain.

OBEISANCE TO THE TEACHER

1. (HIS TEACHERS).

- On the peak of the white snow mountain in the East A white cloud seems to be rising towards the sky.
   At the instant of beholding it I remember my teacher And, pondering over his kindness, faith stirs in me.
- To the East of where that cloud is floating, In that entirely victorious Virtue Solitude, There resided the precious ones, difficult to be invoked, Father Famous Goodheart, the Sire with (his two spiritual) sons.
- The yoga and other (teachings) of the two stages of the road Relating to the profound Doctrine, they preached most fully.
   To the pious of snowy Tibet
   Your grace, O protectors, was ineffable.

11. (HIMSELF).

- 4. Especially that this ease-loving Clergy-Perfection Has turned his mind a little towards the Doctrine Is (thanks to) the kindness of these noble father and sons. Truly your kindness is great, O father and sons.
  - 5. From now onward till (I reach) the heart of saintship, Whilst, except in you, noble father and sons, I will not place my hope for protection in anyone else, I pray you to drag me along with your mercy-hook.
  - Though I cannot repay you in proportion to whatever your favours have been,
     I pray that, with my soul not enslaved by attraction or repulsion,

I may hold fast to your teaching, O protectors, And may always put my best energy into the endeavour.

III. (HIS CONTEMPORARIES).

 However, nowadays, in this snow mountain solitude, (There are those who) whilst promising to follow the teaching themselves, Regard others, who (equally) follow the teaching, as their veriest enemies.

Such conduct calls forth the deepest sorrow.

- 8. With thoughts wishing the ruin of others
  And with souls fettered by fierce ambition,
  They nevertheless promise to dwell on the high road.
  If we consider this (carefully) it is a matter of shame for all concerned.
- These malignant beings,
   Angry because they find themselves in their old age in the wrong road,
   And raging from the bottom of their hearts
   Against those persons who have (duly) acted conform to the Doctrine,

Has not a demon entered their minds?

IV. (HIS PUPILS).

- 10. Not to take steps to conquer the enemy, sin, But yet after mere reproach to flare up in reply, That is as silly as, When an evil spirit is at the Eastern door, To throw the ransom towards the Western door.
- 11. Those virtue-friends who understand that this is so, Think of all embodied beings in general with kindness, But saintly thoughts especially of all who devote themselves to the Doctrine. And they subdue the enemy residing within, sin.
- O, my followers and friends,
   Whilst not letting your souls remain fallen after a lapse,
   But whilst examining (yourselves constantly) whether your minds keep to righteousness,
   To remain on the straight road, that surely is good.

V. (FINAL PRAYER).

13. May all those who believe in these words,
With a mind bent on the drawing on of all beings by means of love and mercy.

Through the (direct) vision of the actionless state of (pure) knowledge.

Speedily obtain (that) glorious, supreme saintship.

VI. (FINAL BLESSING).

 He, whose body blazes with the marks and beauties (as of a Buddha),

Whose speech is adorned with the sixty branches of melody,

Whose deep and wide mind, indeed, is a treasury of omniscient love.

May that glorious teacher's blessing be on us.

The above was composed by the Great Omniscient Clergy Perfection Good-Glory as a song in loving memory.

Blessing.

E. GLOSSARY AND NOTES.

(Lexicographical, Syntactical and Material.)

गुना see गुः

যুব্নীমান্নমান্ত 32. Not so much 'a matter of shame to all' (= all the people who look at or into the matter, the beholders, the general public, or even humanity in general). but rather 'a matter of all (of them) being ashamed,' i.e. the people doing the shameful acts, the people concerned, engaged in this conduct, not the public in general.

welling). (Desg. all-enveloping,' i.e. 'natural corruption or sin,' p. 8b, but 可知识 = 第五元 中國工作, 'excitement of pas sion' on p. 1044a). See also S. Ch. D., p. 29b, 电子程序, but Schroeter, p. 2b. approbation, assent, the consenting to any proposition.'

শুদ, 30. Here equal to আব্দুর্মান, 'yet, however, nevertheless.'

ਗੁ, 20. Not as a separate word in J., who gives ਗੂਜਾ and man, the latter after Schmidt. This is the word occurring in the compound প্রমান্ত্র the Tibetan u-vowel, the 'foot-hook' (not merely honorific of  $\mathfrak{J}$  as Hannah seems to suggest in his Grammar of the Tibetan Language, p. 4), which J. has under জন্ম, on p. 472a, together with a queried meaning 'spur' (of the foot: 'ein Sporn'), taken from Csoma. meaning is unknown to my informants. Bell gives: hook-गुना; fishhook ३ गुना; but iron hook द्वनाहा गु . Henderson gives both निना and गु. for hook, and also द्विनाद्यागु alone for iron hook. My informants deny the correctness of An. knows  $\eta \eta'$  ( $\eta'$ ) only as a verb, not as a subst.; he mentions ng as a separate word, subst. hook, and does not mention The various articles in the three Dicts. sub [77] are interesting but the meaning hook is not given in any of them. S. Ch. D. translates not with 'ngan, a pointed iron hook, a large pin to pierce with,' whilst Macdonell in his Sk. diet . translates the Sk. word as 'hook, goad, stimulus, remedy.' (See below s. v. त्र्रेन्पा) J. under गुना gives also झनाहा गुना, an iron hook, and 3.777, a fishing hook, but my informants say that the colloquial for fish hook is rather 3.4 E4. Mg. (or A3.) भुनाराणु or simply अदिहर (pr. nyendzin). just as a meat hook (to hang up meat on) is A'AET (pr. shendzin). The W in the above represents the pronunciation of the more illiterate people.

One of my informants is, however, of opinion that Andrews J does not mean an iron look at all, but hook in general even though it might be made of silver, copper, gold, etc. He compares it with the word wall. अन्यास दे, which is not neccessarily made of iron, and though of stone or earth is still called 'iron-mountain.' Women's ornaments such as earrings, chains, or necklaces ( ) pr. kenthang, not in the Dicts. or Bell. As a colloquial word the dengbu might perhaps be left out in writing) may have golden or silver hooks, पाइनेट मु, अंचाश्वर्ती. o. रहेल.मु, अंचाश्वर्ती. Examble: श्रु. रश्वरत्रे प्रा क्रुंत्रेद्दरप्यमार्थे हेमात्र्मा। देखामक्षेराद्दान्द्वामु क्ष्मकामु वि त्रण, this woman has a very fine necklace which has four golden and silver hooks (or clasps). Schroeter's diet., p. 361b, already gives স্থুনামণ্ট্ৰ as hook only. The expression স্থুনামণ্ড্ৰন in the sense of mineral, given by Desg., 307a, would make us think that सुनाहाणुं might perhaps mean metal hook, but see below. S. Ch. D. adds to the confusion. Under ganging he . gives: (1) iron pin to guide and punish elephants; fish-hook; (2) name of a plant. (His next entry seems improbable, elephant driving and elephant driver for one and the same word). But under g, he defines galvin, as 'iron hook, an angle, a fishing-hook.' J. has भुषाद्वाणु under भुषाद्वा and gives 'an iron hook, esp. fishing-hook, angle; often fig.' and in his illustration he translates 📆 🛪 📆 ลูกุม 🤠 simply as 'hook of grace.'

He marks the word as belonging to the book language. It is curious to note that Schlagintweit in his Rgyal-rabs (title, or introductory verse) translates the word अनुमान with 'eisernen

Hacken' (p. 25), whilst Schiefner renders the same word correctly on the next page by 'Hacken' alone. But in his new translation of the Rgyal-rabs, H. A. Francke (J.P.A S.B., Vol. VI, n. 8, p. 397) writes again 'Iron Hook.'

There is still another compound with J, namely NATJ, the name for a component part of the claborate torma cake structure. It indicates a small piece of dough in the form of the top of the thumb. From all these examples it might be hazarded that the element J means primarily 'curve, curved' or 'curvature,' and has no substantial meaning like 'hook' or the like My teachers, however, think that J by itself is a substantive 'hook.' So it is not clear whether J. is right as against the other Dicts. in not entering the word separately. The above discussion is in any case better entered under the word J, whether this is really an independent word or not. The fact that S. Ch. D gives a Sk. equivalent for J alone. pleads for its separate existence.

My teachers opine that  $\mathfrak{g}$  as a separate word may occur alone, but their nearest approach to framing a sentence illustrating such a use was one in which they spoke of a wooden hook (made by a jungleman to fish or hunt with) as  $\mathfrak{A} \mathfrak{L} \mathfrak{I}$ . So the example was not decisive.

Additional Note—Cf. the example in Csoma's Grammar.
p 109: সাম্প্রাম্মান্ত্রী, golden fetters or chains, lit.: golden iron ropes. See also Rainsay 'Western Tibet', p. 62:
 'To hook—ngiákuk táng ches, properly applicable only to a fish caught with a hook, but also used generally', and:
 'Hook—ngiákuk (fish hook), kuk kuk (a hook of any kind....'

Query: Is the use of AAN' merely conventional in several words, as in AAN', cage (Bell. Walsh 'Tromowa Dialect'). AND is the use of AAN' perhaps analogous to that of honorific prefixes? Cf. the Dutch guilder (gulden) which is made of silver, though its name is derived from 'gold.'

ग्री.घ. ece ग्री.

TIQ'T', 7. Difficult, but here rather with some of the meaning of the English 'hard' (hard lines?), the French 'dur', perhaps L. 'arduus.' The meaning is somewhat that the invocation should not be undertaken lightly (God's name should not be spoken 'in vain'). Conceptions like: grave, serious, weighty, not lighthearted, or commonplace, or dippant, suggest themselves here. It is 'a serious matter' to invoke these teachers sense given by J. 'the pious,' though it may equally well be rendered by 'the fortunate ones,' i.e. those who were fortunate enough to hear Tson ka pa's preaching or that of his two pupils. One of my informants suggests however, that ALTES should here be taken more literally as 'sharers', 'share-havers' in Tson ka pa's message and consequently should here be understood as his 'followers.'

The idea is not, as in a case of Christian conversion, of a state of previously non-existent faith, suddenly arising, but of an existing faith becoming strongly energised, leaping up (an outburst of faith '). The colloquial ব্ৰুষ্ণ হ্ৰম be suitably translated by to inspire faith to.' For instance A'A'A'S'A' ব্ৰংক্ট্রিস্ট্রু, (মি') ব্রুবা, that lama inspires me with (no) faith. A free translation of 55:口乳口 is consequently 'to have faith in,' but in our passage the additional meaning of renewed 'is implied. Therefore we may also render they call up my faith 'or' renewed faith comes up in me.' See the use of this expression in the Tibetan Primer III, p. 7, l. 8. 3'48' A (read मिंश) क्वायारी रेप्युक्त प्रशास स्थाप के प्रशास क म्नाद्रशः सेन् दर्भः क्षः कुषः ग्रह्भः मार्दः यन् र क्ष्रशः यन् मा मायः । Then he, recognising that the king was very good, and having gained faith in him, and having prostrated himself numberless

The form 55 was described to me as one of intimacy. of utter confidence, as distinct from familiarity and lack of respect. This seems an almost exact parallel to the use of (thou), tu. du in (English), French and German in addressing parents. God, and relations. The following example was given, a quotation from the ব্লামানার্কি, মান্নি, a little ritual gelukpa book, leaf 12a: $\widetilde{\beta}$  $\widetilde{\beta}$ র্ক্তি সাত্র বিষয়ে As thou art our lama, our yi-dam, our dākini, our dharmapāla . . .' It is also averred that in certain combinations a positive statement with BATS is practically identical with the English exclamation : how dare you! how can you!

A compound. difficult to define exactly, is ANAGENTS in which AGE has the meaning, not given in the Dicts. of straight, straightforward, honest, true, dependable, the French droit' (cf. rectitude). The whole expression may mean sabandoned,' or simply ANST Example: ANAGENTS Example: ANAGENTS WATSTATT, the lives of these abandoned (shameless, etc.) men are useless.' An old sweetheart who has east off her lover may be called ANAGENTS the brazen, perfidious girl.' Desg. gives AGE in this sense as equal to ABE, 'good, just, generous.' ম'ব্'ব্রিম'নিব'ট্ট'নিমার'বিব', 'to render your parents kindness in this way shows a lack of gratitude,' my teachers explain the word as 'ungrateful, loveless, harsh.'

As far as the further meanings of A as given in J. (see above), are concerned. P'un Ts'ogs maintains that Tay' মীমানা ডব্ = ক্রমা মানা ডব্ , • pious, ' but Karma denies it, and the former also states that দ্রীমার্মের্ম্ব ভারির মান্ত্র্যান্ত্র which latter expression Desg. and S. Ch. D. know as 'to be disgusted But J. and the others render the former expression with Rar as 'chaste' or 'modest,' or as 'to be chaste,' etc. Both of my teachers are at one about the expression @ AAA 'to be weary, tired, sick of.' Examples: ব্রিক্সাম্রীমান ইন্দি, I am tired of this food. (স্থিতিকা, pr. tobché, see Henderson's Manual, Voc., p 48, s.v. food; there written ฐัสาธณา) মান্দ্ৰীয়ান্ত্ৰীয়ান্ত্ৰীয়া, 'I have got tired of this man.' We may therefore think of ironic. sarcastic, malicious laughter, or of derision and Schadenfreude. मियामार मियाया, to laugh at another, at the expense of another, in order to make him ridiculous. This word Far furnishes a very striking test of the present state of Tibetan lexicography, the word শ্ব will furnish another.

For words like these a comprehensive collection of authentic illustrations is imperative before finer snades and the exact range of meanings can be fixed. E. commonly translated as shame, a synonym for Au, is a similarly uncertain word. Compare the translations in J. and S. Ch. D. of this same sentence: Auntication of the has no shame nor dread; S. Ch. D.: he has no shame or modesty.

মট্রিবর্ট, 55 J.'s queried মৃদ্রির্বন্ট, quoted from Gyalrabs: `prob. `omniscient-merciful.` cannot with any certainty be decided from this passage.

Desg. has 제氏 작가 됐는 뭐지지 같 = 'knowledge of the heart, i.e. pity, mercy.'

S. Ch. D. 'omniscient mercy.'

According to my teachers these are two different words there, knowledge and mercy; not a compound. ABSTI is here hon form of ANIN to know. But a subst. ABST is not recorded in the Dicts. Desg. has a ABSTI = ANIN = ANIN TI = Science, knowledge', and S. Ch. D. also gives ABSTI as 'knowledge' In compounds ABST has usually the verbal value of 'knowing.' The eneries s.v. ABST in the Dicts. need careful comparison and deserve close study.

to know through and through, to know with supernatural knowledge (as, for instance, to know what happens from a distance), cf. the English adj. 'knowing.'

careful, cautious, clever, need further analysis.

Dicts. but there is a difficulty in choosing suitable English words to fit each case in rendering. Such words as the following may be found useful under various circumstances: to be disturbed, upset, disordered (cf. disordered brain), unbalanced, deranged, convulsed, in turmoil tumultuous (a soul in tumult) in revolt. turbulent. wild. seething, in uproar. in the throes of (passion, etc).

And even so none of the above expressions furnishes an easy, idiomatic and close rendering for $\frac{1}{2} \cdot \frac{1}{2} \cdot \frac{ קקיק, 21 Ordinarily to carry, but here to carry back, i.e. to repay, render, return.

ম্মেই'ম', title. Mother Snow Mountain. The affixes to ই' are according to J. ই' and ম'; Desg. adds হ'; S. Ch.

D. only  $\overline{A}$ ; Rell and Henderson no affix. Of these  $\overline{A}$  gives a definite sense of greatness to the mountain. (See S. Ch. D., Grammar, Introduction, p. 18) Here the particle  $\overline{A}$  is not an inherent part of the substantive, but is added to give a feminine sense to the word, which here means something like 'Mother Mountain,' the big mountain being as it were the mother of all smaller hills and heights around it. My informants were definitely of opinion that, here, 'Mother Mountain' and not 'Lady Mountain' was meant. So we should not understand the expression as Her Majesty or Ladyship the Snow Mountain.' The meaning though grammatically important remains better neglected in the translation.

দামো দিন দিন্দিন হৈ য় 25. In this snow-mountain-mass, i.e. monastery. ই দ্রিদ as monastery in J. s.v. হ but not s.v. দিন্দি Bell has ই দ্রিদ as cell (of hermit).

Here the expression seems rather to indicate Gendundub's own monastery (be it Daipung, Tashilhunpo or Namgyalchöde) than Galdan, spoken of in the second verse. See Schulemann. Gesch. der Dailalamas pp. 92 fll. See AFR and AR

নামায়, 33. J. ব্রামায়, error. mistake In Desg. ব্রামায়, or ব্রামায়মা, solitary spot (s ব্রামায়) and মহানামায় (s.ব নামায়), 'has lost his way'; and also ব্রামায়মার নামায় 'নামায়', 'has lost his way'; and also ব্রামায়মার 'নামায়মায়', to put apart: ব্রামায়মা, a separate road, a side road (route détournée). According to Desg. only the past form of ব্রামায়মা, i.e. নামায়, means to have erred, gone astray, both physically and morally. S. Ch. D. copies J., but adds to J.'s ব্রামায়মা, the place where two roads separate: so as to create doubt in the mind regarding the right path.' Schroeter (p. 451a) has two entries ব্রামায়মায়, 'remote,' and ব্রামায়মায়মায় 'a closet.' J. has the latter expression as 'a hermitage,' and Desg., as above, 'solitary spot.' In our passage ANTA' does not mean 'the mistake as to the road.' or Anglice 'the error of his ways.'

In our passage ANTAL has to be taken together in the sense of ANTAN = ANTAN = ANTAN , the wrong road (in a religious sense, in contrast to the ANTAN of 1.31).

ANTAN is here to be understood as a 'wrong-road-place,' as the spot or place (N'=N'&') which is, or proves to be, the wrong road, i.e. the place where one realizes that the road on which one is, is the wrong road, or, perhaps better, that the road is a wrong road (= place) to be in, a wrong-road-spot, indeed.

The meanings, recorded in the Dicts. for compounds with or without initial A of ANAT, seem logical, as one who has separated himself from the road is astray. is mistaken, is (in moral or intellectual matters) in the wrong, in error.

関う, 40. Ransom. Is here rather 関うばっ, well defined by S. Ch. D. s.v. The meaning of 関うばつ is probably 'the ransom (which is thrown to the evil spirit) as a substitute for representative of (the person on whose behalf the offering is made),' J.'s 和何句 'a man's image which in his stead is cast away in the TITY, a ransom in effigy. There are, however, uses of TITY in which the primary sense is perhaps rather effigy' than 'ransom.' In a ritual describing the construction of the torma cake it is said that the TITY (together with many other moulds) must be imprinted on the dough or paste. Here the word seems to mean no more than a mould constituting an effigy of the body.' Though all the torma-cake material is thrown away after it has served its purpose, these imprinted effigies do not seem to serve specially as ransoms like the TITY and TITY quoted above.

As to J.'s queried बिंही ब्राइ प्रेड़ (and the slightly different સે મિંગુ પ્રાપ્ત ), this is explained as follows. The first phrase means: he is a lü in human form (a man-lü, cf. werwolf; D. een lü in menschenvorm, menschelijke gedaante). R'R' means that man, there (with a pointing out by word or finger).' For instance: that man John, that king min 'That man' alone would be भारते. But the second phrase would mean: 'that man so-and-so is a very devil.' J.'s rendering of the first phrase as 'he is a curse, an anathema, one deserving to be cursed' seems too strong. Rather 'an unmitigated nuisance,' for though harsh, it may be said by a mother of her own child when it is naughty and unruly. The sense seems to be 'devil' (as may also be applied to children or wicked grown-ups in English 'they are true devils', D. 'een paar baarlijke duivels') and seems to be a case of meaning-shifting from result to cause (pale death!), the lü being the ransom thrown to the evil spirit, Anglice devil. The association does not seem to be that of worthlessness, hatefulness, something good for nothing, only fit to be thrown away like a lü.

As to the above King Koko, this is a facetious name applied (something like thingumbob) to such Tibetans as ape Chinese manners in dress and in other ways. The is said to be a Chinese word for The NE or EE, elder brother. A Tibetan, strutting about in Darjeeling with Chinese cap and coat may hear the sarcasm addressed to him: সাঁগামন্যান্য ইনমাণ্ডিব্ৰমা Well Mr. Chinaman (or John Ch.. Uncle Ch) where are you going to ? ('Mossioo' of the mid-Viotorian Punch and music hall ditties).

मुद्दार see द्यो स्वर . इयाद स्वर see द्यो स्वर .

This name, 'the virtuous,' seems to refer to the Gelukpa sect, though the monastery which is here meant is usually called SAC The relation between the two terms is not quite clear. Grunwedel, in his Mythologie des Buddhismus, etc., p. 72, speaks of 'das Kloster dGa-ldan oder dGe-ldan.' Gunther Schulemann in 'Die Geschichte der Dalailamas.' p. 65, speaks of the 'Schule, die zuerst dGa-ldan-pa, dann aber dGe-ldan-pa oder dGe-lugs-pa, 'die Tugendsekte' genannt wurde.' Modern Tibetans seem to know only the name SAC 25 for the famous monastery.

single word the affix A' is required, which may disappear in compounds. Bell gives as meaning of AFT. A' religious song, Henderson hymn.'

As J. points out, the profane song is and the religious song significant. A synonym for any is significant (not in the three Diets, but in Bell and Henderson's.v. song).

S. Ch. D.'s a sportive song' is not supported by the data in J. or Desg., nor by my informants. They take the second part of this compound as a misprint for মানুষা and hold that মুমানুষা is a double-form with the meaning of either of its parts: song. The word মানুষা has one honorific form, মানুষামান The words মু and মানুষা have each various hon. forms: মানুষামান (recorded in Bell) and মানুষামান Desg. has a মানুষামান, pleasant song, but my oral information does not support this special meaning.

Note the difference between J. \( \hat{\Hat{H}} \)\( \hat{\H} \)\( \hat{

In Redslob's translation of the Psalms into classical Tibetan, the word সামুদ্ধেন্দ্ৰ is used for psalm.

The following table may be useful.

বিশু ন' and মুন্দ্ৰ', 38. Attention must be drawn to the fact that Desg. identifies মুন্দ্ৰ' with মুন্দ্ৰ' as against J.'s distinction between the two forms as neutral and active. Also that Desg.'s explanation of মান্দ্ৰেম্ম্ৰ্ন্দ্ৰ' etc., as 'to put (the enemy) to flight in battle,' seems more probable than J.'s 'to fight a battle,' etc. The explanation of ርብኝርር,' by ርጣଣ' in the note on ጣርጣል'ርብኝርር, q.v., seems to support this supposition. S. Ch. D. gives as a meaning of ርብኝርር to institute, set going' and translates accordingly ርସር ል'ርብኝርር to institute, set going' and translates accordingly ርସር ል'ርብኝርር as 'to start a combat,' as against J. 'to combat' alone. Also আଧୁର'ርብኝርር 'one who gives battle.' Desg. s.v. বাঙ্গুর (p. 923): বাঙ্গুর বিল্লেখ্য তা বাঙ্গুর বিল্লেখ্য জিমান battle, to combat.' গ্রে also J. s v. বাঙ্গুর জিমান battle,' These words বিল্লেখ্য and বিশ্বত্য, again, need further investigation supported by quotations (as well as the word বাঙ্গুর' with which they are used).

as substantives and has no verb 'to be old.' J.'s analysis seems 'the more accurate one. J.'s 京京で 'old age' is absent in Desg., whilst, this latter has a 京京 without affix as 'old man,' 'old age.' This word S. Ch. D. has as = 京京 'old, ripe'; whilst he adds 京京 '文 'aged. old; exhausted, infirm; an old man.' This group needs proper quotations for final settlement.

My oral information on some of these points is as follows:
The use of $\frac{1}{2}\text{N}'$ alone, as 'old. ripe' is denied. $\frac{1}{2}\text{N}'\text{Z}'$ does not mean $\frac{1}{2}\text{Z}'$ 'old.' because $\frac{1}{2}\text{N}'\text{Z}'$ requires a $\text{A}'$ 'grown old in years' in that sense. As an independent adjective, however, it means 'worn out, exhausted, thin, lean, aged, grown older.' and is in that case an equivalent for $\frac{1}{2}\text{Z}'$. Troubles make a man $\frac{1}{2}\text{N}'\text{Z}'$ 'age him'; make him as if old. Age makes a man $\frac{1}{2}\text{Z}'$, old. i.e. really old. For the use of $\frac{1}{2}\text{N}''\text{N}''\text{Z}'$, old. i.e. really old. For the use of $\frac{1}{2}\text{N}''\text{N}''\text{N}''\text{Z}'$, don't do such work (or things: or don't behave in that manner) in your old age; $\frac{1}{2}\text{N}''\text{N}''\text{N}''\text{Z}''$, don't think bad (evil) thoughts in your old age when (whilst) death is drawing near.'

নুর্বার্থ and স্মুর্বার্থ, 54. The treatment of these words in the Dicts. seems unsatisfactory. None of the Dicts. give a passive verb নুর্বার্থ or স্মুর্বার্থ 'being adorned, being decked out, embellished,' etc. J. has only নুর্বার্থ as a subst. 'ornament.' decoration,' and a verb স্মুর্বার্থ 'to adorn, decorate, provide with.' According to this his own example সুম্বার্থ স্থান্থ স্থান্থ স্থান্থ ভিন্ন should not mean, as he says, 'the letter nya (সু.) being provided with an S above it' (= মু.), but rather something like 'to adorn the letter nya with a sa as a topletter.'

Desg. knows a verb 頭丸口 or 虱丸切口 (or 虱丸口) with the meaning of to adorn,' with a past tense བոྱན་, 'ornavi, ornatus, orné,' whatever that means. He and J. quote also a 頭丸刀虱口或口頭、'adorned,' in which the 頭丸' has clearly a substantival value, like in 頭丸乳勺口, 'without adornment, unadorned.'

S.v. মন্ত্র' Desg. says: 'pract verbi ন্ত্র'ম্ম', ornatus, et v. act. ornare, orné, orner,' and he adds মন্ত্র'ম্' or ক' ornament.' Bell has ন্ত্র'ক' for ornament. But J. knows no মন্ত্র' ম' or ক' as substantives and refers expressly to the unprefixed ন্ত্র' for the substantives. He further equates ন্ত্র'ক' and ন্ত্র' ক' and ন্ত্র' ornaments' (plural). Under মন্ত্র'ম্ম'ম', 'to put on.' we find further ন্ত্র'ম্ন্রম্ম'ম', to put on gay clothes, finery (s.v. ন্ত্র' , the same expression is translated as 'to adorn one's self,') and ন্ত্র'ম্ন্রম্ম'ম', 'beautifully attired' (Mil.). If these translations are idiomatically true we should expect

(5) चुँ to have a wider sense than the English ornament. rather anything beautiful or fine, whether ornaments (in the sense of trinkets) or not. The word adornment would fit better. (C/. D, tooi, G. Smuck.)

Desg. gives no example of 557 with a clearly active value of the verb 'to ornament,' but both in J. and Desg. such examples are given under ব্রুক্তা Desg. gives as synonyms भेन्य ने के बार के स्टूब ने कार्य it is a question whether in these expressions  $55^{\circ}$  can have the neuter sense of 'to act as' = 'to be' (like in ฏีผาวัวิรุวา'). S. Ch. D. (who has several বন্ধ, 'to arrange ornaments (tastefully); to decorate. adorn, to construct or adjust grammatical forms, sentences, (Zam.).' This latter use of  $\nabla \bar{\eta} \bar{\eta}$  is evidently the clue to the expression, quoted elsewhere by Desg and S Ch. D.: 475 মান্দ্ৰ মান্দ্ৰ কৰ্মাজন, one versed in rhetoric, a clever orator. The equation 회학자=국학자 (in the modern language, v. Bell, to put, place), given by S. Ch. D. is denied by both my teachers. though confirmed by Desg.; they know of no Tibetan word of this spelling and sound with the meaning bejewelled, adorned, decorated, as is the correct translation of the Skr. equivalent tited, মাজিন. Yet may সূত্ৰ (মা) perhaps mean an ornamented object', hence 'die. dice'; hence again Desg. 'objets mêlés pour tirer les sorts', and lastly 'stake' (in gambling) and 'lot'? This first meaning is not in the Dicts. but would settle the question discussed a few lines lower down, and explain those combinations with  $\bar{\mathfrak{IJ}}\bar{\gamma}$  which refer to gambling and divination. In connection with the immediately following articles in S. Ch. D., ক্রুইন্স্ন্স্ম্র, 'one who joins in a wager, gambler' [one who puts up his jewels, ornaments for a stake?], and JAST or ARTH, 'a dice-rogue, a game-ster, one who throws dice,' etc., it should be ascertained whether there is a Tibetan word with JAT which means die, dice, or whether the combinations refer to the staking of ornaments and jewels in gambling.

S.v. বনু্র্ব্'ম' S. Ch. D. gives no news, treating this word, however, as a verb, and referring to ক্র্ব্ for the subst.

As a result of this little investigation we come to the conclusion that it is legitimate to inquire whether there is not a Tibetan verb [5] (more likely than [5] (1)) with the passive or neuter sense of 'being decked out, being ornamented or adorned, showing gaily.' What would render such a word exactly in English is difficult to see, unless we coin a verb 'to splendiferate,' but D. pronken (pronken in vollen luister) comes near to it. Other related words would be: to blaze forth, to shine out, to cut a dash, or else to swagger, to swank, to preen, to strut, or again to be graced with or by, to show forth, etc., but especially 'to display' in the technical zoological sense.

An instructive illustration in this matter is furnished by the following two sentences, both with the same meaning: সুমেশ্রম্প্রান্ত্রা, or সুম্প্রেইমেশ্রম্প্রান্ত্রা, of which the best idiomatic translation is: O, what a fine picture!; how fine is the painting (drawing) of (in) (this) picture!

But the psychological translation is in the first case: 'This picture is by-lines-(fine-)-displaying', and in the second case: 'To this picture there is a by-the-lines-(drawings)-ornamentation (or display).'

ந்து, 6. According to J., III. also 'superior, excellent, eminent.' துருபுக்குப்பக்கு 'most excellent, illustrious.' This may be the meaning here. Whether there is a connection between the word as used here and the நுவுகு title of the Dalai Lamas may be left undecided.

To 30. Here character, heart, disposition, etc. It is curious that this meaning, given by J. and Desg., is absent in S. Ch. D.

So here the expression seems to mean 'to think with goodwill, with kindness (of others), not the colloquial 'to have a good opinion of, to think well of.' To think 'good' is here the opposite of to think 'evil,' but the idiomatic value of the expression 'to think well of' (as the opposite of 'to think poorly of') would make the latter rendering misleading. The real value, then, of the expression as used in this passage, seems to be: 'to think good, kind thoughts of,' i.e. purely, or saintly in the sense of kindly, lovingly, benevolently, in a friendly manner, with sympathy, but not, as J. seems to suggest, intellectually correct. We may expand the rendering into 'with a holy mind, with thoughts of saintliness, thinking saintly thoughts.' Compare J.'s colloquial phrase quoted above. So, as to the interpretation of the line in which the compound occurs, we take it that it means to enjoin, in contrast with the previous line in which it is said that beings in general must be thought of with kindness, that religious people (instead of the mere lavmen) must be thought of in a still better, higher manner; namely with holiness and saintliness.

Attention should be drawn to the meaning of ষুদ্ৰেনা, 'the soul' (with speilings ঝুদ্ৰ and ঝুদ্ৰেনা, বুনা, বুনা, বুনা, ধুনা, s. J.). Also the curious expression 'to be indifferent' ঝুদ্ৰেনা মান্দ্ৰেনা, S. Ch. D.: and ঝুদ্ৰেনা মান্দ্ৰিনা, Bell. These expressions not in Desg.

স্থান্ত, 27. Adverb: 'purely, first class, first rate' Not in J. but in Desg., yet here in a slightly different application. About S Ch. D.'s 'gravy' and 'relish' see below. সুম্বান্ত with the genitive seems to mean 'acme'. 'essence', the typical embodiment of something, like in expressions as 'a first class liar, a thief pure and simple, the very devil, satan himself, nothing short of an angel, a saint in propria persona.' সুমুম্বিস্কান, 'the very enemy.' In the colloquial সুম্বান্ত and মুম্মিম্বিস্কান himself, number one' or the kitchen Malay equivalent 'nommer satu.' Other equations are মুম্বান্ত (or মু'), also মুম্বা, the Anglo-Indian pukka.'

The word 5 KM may mean soup or gravy in the following case, when there is question of singling out the liquid portion from a mixture of broth and liquid. The primary meaning seems in that case rather to be liquid as contrasted to solid.

L'A'5 KM MANTAK = give me (only) the liquid (not the solid stuff), pour out to me (only) the liquid. But this 5 KM has no final M. A common word for soup which is not in the Dicts. is 'ru thang', probably 5 MM, or MT alone.

This latter word is in J. with the meaning of 'potion', a medical term, and in S. Ch. D. as 'potion, plain decoction, or mixture to be drunk after a medicinal pill has been taken.' The word 5 KM T means originally bone-soup, but has acquired also the more general meaning 'soup.' MT can be applied to meat-soup, MT, but MT cannot be used. It might be that MT and 5 KM are really the same word.

र्हेन् होरा, 16. Also हेर्न होन, adjective 'kind.' According to S. Ch. D. also 'very kind, great boon, and the great or greatest benefactor.' S. Ch. D.'s wording is unsatisfactorily indefinite and his examples, taken from J., fit the text badly.

J. does not define the combination $\( \frac{2}{3} \) \( \frac{2}{3} \) \( \frac{2}{3} \) though he has an example \( \frac{2}{3} \) \( \f

In form ਤ੍ਰਿਤਾ ਤੋਂ ਤਾਂ is a comparative, 'kinder.' ਨੇਰ੍ਹਾ ਤਾਂ is one of those adjectives which have a comparative and superlative of their own as:

In practice, however, as shown by the above examples, the form is used for an ordinary quality in the positive degree though implying an amount of abundance or fullness of the quality referred to. Bell (p. 33) and Hannah (p. 129) have described these degrees of comparison. Short and partial notes in S. Ch. D.'s grammar (p. 31) and Henderson (p. 23). See J. Diet. s.v.  $\widetilde{A}$ , p. 564.  $\widetilde{A}$ , J. 262b (as equal to  $\widetilde{A}$ ) is not acknowledged by my informants.

means 'full', does the Tibetan & ( ) as a termination of adjectives really mean 'great.'

Bell has देन केन दें। for 'kind.'

The word  $\frac{1}{2}$  and its uses merit a separate inquiry. In this place we shall limit ourselves to stating that the entry gratitude (S. Ch. D., Ramsay, Schroeter) seems incorrect. The confusion has most likely come about because a  $\frac{1}{2}$  and  $\frac{1}{2}$  is an answer to kindness (return gift, etc.) and so betokens gratitude.

নার্নান, 35. The three Dicts. are not at our as to the exact shades of meaning of নার্নান

J. has, subst.: 'anything hurtful, or any injury, mischief, harm, done.'

Desg., subst.: 'dommage, perte, mal.'

S. Ch. D. no substantive.

J, adj. (= শ্র্রিশ্বের), noxious, mischievous, dangerous.

Desg., adj. only नार्ना राज्य, not नार्ना alone: nuisible (noxious), and a नार्ना = नार्ना, deteriorated.

S. Ch. D., adj.: न्रुन्द्र, vicious, mischievous, deleterious, poisonous.

In J. and S. Ch. D further applied meanings as: wild hideous (screams); ferocity (in beasts), deleterious (smell), fierce (woman).

In our passage the expression মানুমানামান্তর may be rendered by malign, wicked, evil, evil-minded, spiteful, with sufficient correctness.

expressive of longing or of grief, an elegy (Mil.); but this definition is not quite typical of our present poem. S. Ch. D. has a song of longing grief. J.'s example ANTINITION where HILL'S means (spiritual) love, seems to point out to a meaning more apposite here. So we would prefer a translation: paean hymn of praise (D. lofzang), or psalm instead of elegy. Other words to be considered: song of thanksgiving, memorial song, lament, plaintive song (Jammerklacht?), memorial verses, an in memoriam, a memorial, etc. See also

The dge rgan, however, explains the word indeed in J.'s manner, but states that the longing and grief are not the worldly sentiments but religious ones. The longing and grief are concerned with the sorrows of the world and a yearning after spiritual realities, but not with the memory of the three teachers mentioned in the poem. If this is true, the above hypothesis is likely to be a wrong one and in my translation of the colophon the words there used should in that case rather run as a song of yearning for the higher life' (cf. the G. 'Weltschmerz').

Pictorial representations might decide the point. My teachers think rather of a rod with a hook at the end, like the episcopal staff, and not of angling with a fishhook or prodding with a goad.

মৃদ্যান্ধ, 33. Or simply পুর, here: 'the loss of temper, wrath, angry explosion or outburst.' This sense is not given in the Dicts., though J.'s 4, 'ardour, fervour, transport' comes মৃদ্য Wম. is the same as প্রম., but for the fact that the former word shows the cause, an outburst on account of trouble, vexation, worry, pain, sorrow. কান্ট্র জান্ম , 9. I have not received an explanation of the 'etc.' (জান্ম ) in this place and I ignore what kind of category is alluded to here. It seems not probable that the '18 classes of science' can be meant, which, in the Mahāvyutpatti (Ed. M.A.S.B.), form group XXIV, p. 20. Group L, (p. 59), furnishes more likely material, but Yoga is missing in it.

্বামানুষ্, 56. 'Glorious, noble,' also 'having abundance.'

Twice mentioned in J.'s article but not translated, perhaps because the meaning is so evident. Curious that neither Desg. nor J. specially cite this compound to which S. Ch. D. gives 7 lines, besides mentioning several combinations.

ব্যমানু: মৃত্, 52. Is this one word ?

Colloquially ব্রহ'র is 'to thrive, to prosper, to do well.'

ह्यों 53. Here ह्यों = ह्यों नुह or ह्यों नुह न्व हारों technically 'the eighty symmetrical parts, proportions, or points of beauty (Cs., Mahāvyutpatti); or beauties, lesser signs (de Harlez); proportions (Schiefner) See the references under সুর্ভার and National J (s.v. 52), p 327b) gives the full expression 'the eighty physical perfections of Buddha,' 53,75,735,735 মন্ত্র, and হ্রান্ত্র, alone 'proportion, symmetry beauty.' J. has the entry 527 'symmetry, harmony, beauty (in certain phrases)' but S. Ch. D. omits this. Our passage is an example of this use, but the syllable  $5\overline{\mathfrak{A}}$  is really an abbreviation here and not a full and independent word. Desg. seems to be mistaken in saying: 53°55' (sic, misprint for 55') or মার্ক্সম্প্র 'proportion, symmetry, the 80 marvels of the body of the Buddha.' So 521.25. means indeed symmetrical, showing 80 marvels,' but these meanings would not be applicable to National which could only mean 'showing the 32 signs and 80 beauties.'

For the rest Desg.'s 2nd article s.v. 52 adds to J.'s data, and his 52 30 and 52 50 custom, rule, example are new. In Desg. 'custom, rule' tally with S. Ch. D. 'way of doing, method' which J. has as 'pattern, model,' but which he translates more freely in his examples. J. s.v. 55 'proportion, symmetry, beauty,' quotes a 52 55 from the Dzl. in the same sense. According to this ব্ল' would be equal to ব্ল' which seems improbable and is denied by my informants. An example of the use of ব্ল'কুম' is the following: বিশ্বমানী বিক্তম'বিশ্বমানী বিক্তমানী বিক্তম

If used as an emblem of holiness or spiritual loftiness in connection with eminent persons, this expression may perhaps contain a stereotyped allusion to the name of the tenth and supreme bhūmi or stage of the Bodhisattva, the dharma-megha, 'cloud of virtue,' Ext' See Mahāvyutpatti, ed. D. to a Sk. nishprapanca (or apanca, aprapanca) which in Macdonell's Sk. Dict. is rendered by 'unevolved, exempt from multiformity.' We may, therefore, think of expressions like "the undifferentiated, homogeneous, absolute.' The word dhātu being the Sk. equivalent for Tib. 5355 the whole expression ក្សិក្សា អ៊ីឡាបា must correspond to a Sk. aprapanca dhātu. The same Sk. Dict. translates the word dhātu as 'layer, component part, element.' In Tibetan 55cs means, according to J.: (1) 'the heavens'; (2) 'height'; (3) 'extent, region, space, in metaphysics an undefined idea.' According to the etymology হার্ম ব্রমা should mean 'passive, actionless, quietistic, inert,' but according to the etymology of its Sk. prototype rather 'undifferentiated, monadic.' One of my informants compares it with & The The dharma dhatu, and E TI 35. shunvatā, the void, the absolute. In this connection one should compare J.'s statements (215a) that in modern (Tibetan) Buddhism the term মার্বিয়েম্র্রায়ারা ( স্থানিষ্কর ), 'clear understanding or perception `means the same as $5.7.35. and further (259b) that र्ने द्वार , originally प्रमार्थ, has, in later times, also become equivalent to $17.35. It seems that the old metaphysicians reached regions and distinctions where their followers could no longer join them, and hence the process became 'omne ignotum pro $1.7.35.' For practical purposes the rendering 'absolute,' or 'motionless' might be used for মুধানুঝা, whilst the word ১৪ুমো might be rendered by 'principle, state, region.' If occurring in a specimen of the more technically and theoretically philosophical literature of Northern Buddhism, a more precise rendering and more careful definition might be required. Taking the following 577 as 'knowledge', perception, cognition,' then the whole expression becomes in English 'the knowledge of the motionless state (or region, or principle)' or —more pedantic but perhaps truer—

'the knowledge of (that is: pertaining to, inherent in) the monadic state.' Other equivalents: 'a state of stillness, the still state' and, mystically, 'the wisdom of the silence.'

One of my informants, the dgo rgan, knows of a colloquial use of \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \( \) \

A בְּנֵרִיתְּגִיתְ, 29. 'To wish the ruin, the undoing, destruction, of, to be bent on the perdition of, to wish evil to '=בּּגַרָעִגִיתְּקָּבָּיִעִי

মুম্নের বিশ্ব বিশ্ব 17. The bodhimanda, according to the Dicts. historically and geographically Gaya, where the Buddha attained nirvana. Here, however, it means rather the state implied by the locality, 'illumination, the essence of purification, final sainthood' literally 'the quintessence of bodhi.' In Christian language Golgotha (or the Cross) is similarly used in a metaphorical sense. In living Tibetan 55.27 (bodhi) is not understood as 'wisdom' but as 'saintliness, purity.' There is, it seems, a confusion in the group of Tibetan [and Chinese! renderings of bodhimanda (bodhi-essence) and bodhimandala (bodhi-round), and their synonyms, a confusion which may already have its origin in India itself. The treat ment of these words in the Dicts, is not satisfactory. J. and S. Ch. D. give s.v. 为下极口就下行 this word as synonymous with EETS, Vajrāsana, but under & S. Ch. D. has the entry: བང་རྡང་རྡོང་རྡོ་, the spirit of the Bodhisattva, i.e. Buddhahood.' This is the sense meant in our passage, though it may be doubted whether 55.55 really stands here for সুমান্ত্র as S. Ch. D. interprets it instead of only for bodhi. The Mahāvyutpatri (A.S.B., p. 44) has Bodhimanda = 55.55. and Cs. translates, 'the essence of sanctity or holiness (name of the holy place at Gaya).' I yet believe that here a confusion of manda and mandala must be thought of. J. has, s.v. \(\sigma_{\text{CV}}^{\text{CV}}(p. 198b)\) 'snyin-po-byan cub-thought of. J. has, s.v. \(\sigma_{\text{CV}}^{\text{CV}}(p. 198b)\) 'snyin-po-byan cub-though cub-snyin-po)-la meis-pa, to become Buddha Thgy.' Rockhill, Life of the Buddha, p. 35, mentions the form, byang-tehub-kyi-snying-po as the equivalent for bodhimanda, and though Foucaux in the alphabetical index to his translation of the Lalita Vistāra gives only the form without \(\text{U}\)' yet in his text, in the places I verified (p. 239, five times), there is the \(\text{U}\)' as with Rockhill.

In mentioning the word  $\tilde{\xi}$   $\tilde{\xi}$   $\tilde{\eta}$   $\tilde{\zeta}$  a special reference must be made to the element  $\tilde{\eta}$   $\tilde{\zeta}$ , commonly translated as bolster, cushion, seat, rug, etc. J. is very detailed about it. He has: 'a bolster, or seat composed of several quilts or cushions, put one upon the other (five for common people, nine for people of quality).' Desg. simply 'stuffed cushion.' S. Ch. D. more general 'a low seat, a divan, cushion, a bolster.' As to J.'s definition my authorities declare that this may be so perhaps 'on the Ladakh side' but is certainly not so in Tibet and in the Darjeeling district. They do not know about the details of five and nine cushions. They take the meaning far wider than bolster or cushion. They say that anything used to support anything or to seat anybody may be called  $\tilde{\eta}$   $\tilde{\zeta}$ , it may be a sheet of eleth a correct a blanket a cushion and  $\tilde{\zeta}$ it may be a sheet of cloth, a carpet, a blanket, a cushion, a bolster, a seat in general, anything used for lying or sitting down on. The word has a meaning exactly opposite to the English 'cover' and can consequently be used in as many varied senses as the latter. Etymologically—if the root of \$155, as seems probable, means 'to support'—the word would mean something like 'bearer,' 'basis,' 'bed,' 'floor.' 'upholder.' We might think of 'underwear', though in English that particular word is used with quite another association of ideas. In typography there is a word 'underlay' which corresponds exactly to the meaning of  $\pi \pi \pi$ . The word 'bedplate', used in engineering, comes also near to it. It will be easily seen how an applied meaning as 'cushion, bolster,' if given as the general sense of the word, would in many cases be totally inadequate. The line of associations to which 'cushion' belongs, and the line of associations to which 'seat, support, underlay' belong, intersect at only one point and for the rest have nothing in common. A table-cloth inay be called নাব্ৰ because the food rests on it ( ই'নাব্ৰ is used in this sense; lit. something like 'food-sheet, that on which the food rests'). In a ritual it is prescribed that the মাহর for the offerings should be a spotless piece of white cotton or other cloth, called মুক্ত্ৰ্মান্ত্ৰ; 'offering sheet,' 'that on which the offerings rest ' Bell has N'755 for 'carpet': small cushion, placed on chair [77]55; large cushion on ground মেন্দ্র This is a most interesting example illustrating the fact that it is strictly necessary first to find out the root. idea of a Tibetan word before translating it by words representing the incidental applications of that root-idea. Whoever has handled Chinese dictionaries knows how specially necessary this is in studying Indo-Chinese languages. The Sanskrit equivalent, asana, is derived from the root as, to sit or lie, but the Tib. root seems different.

Further notes on $\Pi$5. Cf. J. $\Pi$75. (pr. magdàn), ground, basis, foundation, p. 409a. Bell, apron $\Pi$775. Cs., Grammar, p. 170, 1. $\frac{1}{2}0$, translates $\Pi$5. as couch (stuffed seat). Lewin, Manual, p. 123, first word last line: 'mat, seat', in the same sentence taken over from Cs.'s Grammar. Two synonyms for J.'s $\Pi$75. quoted above are $\Pi$775. and $\Pi$775. Bell also has 'mat.'

JAN' NC E, 50. Seems simply an amplified form for 'love.' Difficult to be translated exactly, Sk. maitrikarunā, may be treated as a compound, loving-kindness, love and kindness, or pity. On the question of karunā, especially, the learned have descanted profusely.

รัฐาาสาร์ 47. 'Straight, upright, righteous mind.' J.'s entry is a little vague. I think he takes প্রনাম in his example विनाहा मान्य के an indication that पानु में is also a honorific form. That, however, is not the case. Compare also the quotation from Cs. in S. Ch. D., माइ प्राप्त प्राप्त 'to be impartial and straightforward, to be on the side of honesty.' I don't find this example in Schmidt. Desg. 'straight, upright, (élevé,) just, honest.' According to the above the word is an adj and the translation of the passage becomes 'whether you persevere in a straight (righteous) mind. The verb न्द्रा has then to be taken as 'to hold, adhere to, persevere in (an opinion etc.)' If however, we should find that प्राप्त can also be sbst. 'righteousness', 'straightness,' (not in any Dict.), then नाद्यान्य would have the other meaning of 'to dwell. reside' and the phrase would have to be rendered whether the mind (continues to) dwell(s) in righteousness.' S. Ch. D. renders স্বাধানাব্র ন as 'honest mind,' but the sense honest versus dishonest seems not quite applicable in our passage. J is vague here. My informants gave the above definition 'straight, upright' as their own but felt afterwards vague about this example which, though they had framed it, they could not vouch for: क्रे-नेमा चेन्-नेन-नेमा के मानका हैं भारीमा, 'see whether the man keeps straight or not.' The framer honestly confessed that whilst we were discussing the word he had been influenced by S. Ch. D Dict. in coining the sentence; a confession so instructive for idiom-verifiers that I think it worth while to record it here.

্বার্ট্র (ম') মান্দ্র, 22. (Not) fallen under the power (of) . . . .

5553, 54 and colophon. This word seems here hardly to mean 'song, singing tune,' but rather 'melody, melodiousness, sweetness,' etc. This tallies to a certain extent with Csoma's translation of the title of list LXI (p. 86) of the Mahāvyutpatti, 'Names of the 60 sorts (or divisions) of melody or melodious voices (or vocal sound).' I take it that this list refers to what is mentioned here in our text. How these 60 branches of melody are exactly to be understood I have not been able to ascertain. The opinions of P'un Ts'ogs on the point are as follows. The Buddha's voice had such a variety of (magic?) qualities, sixty in number, that they made him understood by all beings, whatever their own languages. The Buddha was in this way simultaneously understood by men, devas, nāgas, etc. In proffering this explanation P'un Ts'ogs takes way and to mean rather 'kind' than 'branch.' As an alternative he suggests that 555% is an adjective synonymous with $55, 'high' (as applied to voice or rather tone) [or perhaps long, lengthened?] and that then 555% way would mean a 'variety' of tones or modulations. I myself am inclined to think that if the Mahāvyutpatti list is not referred to, we have here to do with some scholastic scheme of rhetorics, though if so understood the exact value of 555% is not clear and certainly not sufficiently defined in the Dicts.

Plained with certainty. It may be taken here to mean, literally, 'to send out (distribute, give, put forward) justice, right,' but the exact idiomatic value of the phruse remains to be determined. It is not in the Diets., and unknown to my informants. We may take the possible values of the expression as three, viz.: 1 সাবাম্বাস্থা = ইম্মান্ত্রমান = নাবামান্ত্রমান = 'to dispute, argue, contend with words.' This seems the same expression as S. Ch. D.'s মানুবামান্ত্রমান 'to hold controversy,' p 1248. (Perhaps also to challenge to be challenged to dispute.') 2. =মের্থমান 'to be defeated in argument. in dispute, to be silenced in dispute.'

- 3. = 'To make observations to, to remonstrate with, to use plain speech to, to speak straight to, to rebuke, to reproach, to tell one the truth.' (Cf the entry in J.'s *k'a kye &e * to abuse, to menace (p. 97b)') This seems the sense required here and would be a logical development of the primary meaning of the expression: 'to spread out the justice (right) of the case before someone,' i.e. 'to submit the truth about it.'
- S. Ch. D. has s.v. [유미시티티 = [고급등 'using rough language, controversy, discussion dispute.' The other Dicts, lack this word.

The above is the result of an exhaustive discussion of the expression with my teachers. Lexicographically (with a view to the entry quoted from S. Ch. D.) the first explanation seems the best, but with reference to the context, the last one deserves preference, and this is the one chosen for the rendering.

It should be noted that in modern Tibetan there seems to be taking place a shifting of the meaning of \(\Pi\) Instead of as 'right, justice' it seems to be understood by some modern Tibetans as 'the arguing about right or justice' as in a court of law, and hence simply as 'dispute, argument, pleading.'

Example: 'This is not the place to argue your rights, \(\overline{\Pi\}\).

F. ADDITIONAL NOTES.

In 1.10 the Q' might also be understood as 'with a view to, for the purpose of, explaining, expounding.' The translation should in that case rather run: With a view to expounding the profound (Buddhist) doctrine, they preached, explained, most fully, minutely, in full detail, Yoga and the other teachings (or the various kinds of Yoga) of the two stages of the road... Q' has then the force of: with regard, reference to; as far as... is concerned.

In l. 17 the 'till' ought to be more emphatically rendered: until the very moment that, i.e. I shall not cease a moment before. Or else: till I reach the very heart of saintship. See J. s.v. 55.

In 1. 49 'May all those' is more correct than 'May all of you', for unlike in the three preceding verses which are addressed to his pupils, the author now utters a universal prayer addressed to mankind in general.

Note to p 2. Waddell, Lāmaist Graces before Meat, J.R.A.S., 1894, p. 265, says that the libation is sprinkled with the tips of the fore and middle fingers. This is denied by my informants who maintain their statement as given on p. 2. above.

Gods,' and had it copied for me. It is a small prayer-book to Tson k'a pa, who manifests in a hundred different forms, and it contains 18 four-lined stanzas of 9 syllables each, with the single exception of the stanza quoted in the Introduction, which contains five lines.

written by ATARTHANDEL THE Seventh Dalai Lama. Grunwedel, in the list of Dalai Lamas on p. 206 of his 'Mythologie,' etc., writes ATART and Rockhill, in 'Tibet, a...sketch delived, from Chinese sources,' J.R.A.S., Vol. XXIII, new series, 1891, p. 287, ATART

Since, I have also found that this same stanza, with a modification, occurs on the title page of Sarat Chandra Das' edition of the 54774837 $\hat{A} \cdot \frac{1}{2} \cdot \hat{A} \subseteq \subseteq \text{CBibl. Ind.)}. The stanza as there given consists of six lines, by the addition of an initial line to

र्नेट्स्युनणुरत्वुट.बुन:र्नटःहें हे ५कटः।,

i.e. the Thunderbolt-bearer, Vajradhara.

I am informed that the prayer occurs also in many other books with modifications, and that when it is used in connection with নুধানে or 'lustration' rites the closing words after সুন্ধান্ত are changed into নুধানি ক্রান্ত 'we baptise thee.'

To p. 17. 'S. Ch. D., p. 490 b, s.v नाउउउउउ mentions a medicinal root used against the plague. called अनुवार (without zhabs-kyu), but transcribed leags kyu.

To p. 23. Huth, Hor chos byun, trs., p. 117, renders ম্মের ব্রুম as dāka, also on p. 118 (see note 4). On p. 231 (see note 1) he suggests that आप्त्र त्यों should be understood as dīkinī =মান্ত্ৰির মূল not as Sk. dīka. The dge-rgan understands all these three passages as referring to (female) dakinis. Though according to Grünwedel ('Mythologie,' p. 153) in Sk. mythology a male dāka exists (a Tantra daity), in Tibet the ম্নিন্ নু is always feminine, and a male species or individual does not exist according to my informants. This statement needs testing of course. Grünwedel (loc. cit.) thinks that these female dākinīs are original Tibetan spirits or goddesses. female 없고실회·제도 고길. 's are mentioned indifferently with or without the final 57. Macdonell in his Sk. Dict. only mentions the feminine form of the word. In the ritual book नाहिंद्र कर्म "The six cut off pieces" (i.e. chapters, divisions, into which the description of the torma offering is divided) we find the apostrophe: गुैः अर्थः अद्याप्ते विश्वः गुैः अप्ति २ दिन् वि अर्थः अर्यः अर्थः अर्यः अर्थः अर्यः अर्थः अर्थः अर्यः अर्यः अर्थः अर्यः अर्थः अर्थः अर्थः अर्थः अर्थः अर्य fairy, supernatural ( = not-human) mother," so defining the In Tibetan the form आदित देश must accordingly not be understood as a masculine form of আমন্ত্র্ সূত্র, but as its abbreviated form only. This without prejudice to the question whether in special Tantrik texts a male god Dāka, মা্মব্ ব্রা does occur

S. Ch. D. has for AFR AFF an entry giving the meanings 'god, bird, arrow.' Here the word has a poetical or metaphorical meaning based on its etymology, 'sky-goer,' but no mythological value. He adds under AFRA AFF a class, mainly of female spirits.' But the form in A cannot be masculine. In Tibet there is a class of people called AFF, both male and female, whose name may be translated as oracles.

shamans or mediums. They are deemed to be obsessed by Tanana is save are in a state of trance or obsession. Their name is Tanana in Lhassa and other greater towns, and amongst the more educated: but the country-people and the lower orders have a special name for these mediums if they are women and call them Tanana or special in this sease. In Sikkhim the word Alacana is general in this sease. In Sikkhim the designation for a male medium of this sort is 5513 and not Tanana in Tibet.

Whilst investigating the question of Khandomas from the standpoint of colloquial Tibetan I stumbled unexpectedly on the following interesting piece of information, throwing a vivid sidelight on some current beliefs and practices of modern Tibet.

The abbot of the Saskva monastery is held to be the reincarnation of Padmasambhava. As the latter was the great binder,' that is subduer, of all spirits, witches, goblins and other creatures of that ilk the Saskva abbot has in some way become the official head and master of all Tibetan witches. Belief in witches is rife all over Tibet, and any woman is liable to be declared one. The process is very simple. If a great Lama receives obeisance from the multitude he presents the devotees in return with a 'protection-knot' ($1555), a narrow strip of cloth which he puts round their necks. He ties a knot in it muttering some mantram over it, hence the name. Ordinary laymen receive a white strip, tapas or those who have their hair cut short (probably because they look like tapas) get a yellow or red strip, but if a woman approaches whom the Lama by his magic knowledge recognizes as a witch, she receives a black strip. From that moment she is irrevocably a witch and no protestation can help her out of the situation. In the Saskya monastery an annual feast or ceremony is celebrated in which all witches must appear personally, and the magic then displayed is so tremendously powerful that all women who are secretly endowed with the powers of witchcraft without the people knowing it, are irresistibly compelled to attend the meeting. They simply cannot help it, and so stories are told of witches working in the fields, milking cows, or otherwise engaged, being drawn away from their work and appearing in the assembly with their milk-pail, or spindle, or whatever utensil they were using at the time at any work. when they were forced to quit it and to come to Saskya. In the meeting they are then officially proclaimed witches and forced to pledge allegiance and obedience to the Saskya monastery and its head. Then the profitable and practical side of the transaction becomes manifest, for henceforth they have to pay an annual, heavy witch-tax, and in cases known to Karma himself, who came across them when living in Tibet, this tax amounted to one 5 55 (see Bell, p. 104) or about Rs. 120 a year. On the other hand they are now protected by the authority of the monastery as long as they pay the tax, though they have to pledge themselves not to use their powers for evil. Then they receive the official title of মানুমান্দ্র বিলু, though they are known to the people as and si, witch. this latter word is a term of abuse or contempt. The meaning of the two terms, however, is the same. The entries in the dicts. s.v. ANA No and I and other spellings) need proper testing in the light of the above. These witches are supposed not to live up to a great age but to die young, because the monastery calls them out of life to become protecting spirits of the monastery in the invisible spheres. When a bamo dies, her daughter, if she has any, inherits the office or quality of the mother. These bamos, during life, follow the ordinary occupations of women: buying, selling, working or marrying, and their bamo-hood seems to be no drawback, in itself, to their matrimonial prospects. I heard of the case of a bamo who was the wife of a very wealthy man. But the tax, far in excess of any levied on ordinary people, must be regularly paid. If the bamo does not pay her tax, the monastery calls her soul and she dies. In the gompa for every accredited ATZ T there is a $17 or stuffed effigy, puppet, of which I have not been able to get a full description. Probably a stuffed doll or body, with a mask and garment, perhaps only a stick to hold the mask and garment up, like in a puppet-show. Each such puppet becomes the dwelling-place of the soul of a dead bamo when she dies, and in order to see to it that after death she may not do harm whilst roaming about, the puppet is bound in chains. Horrible to say, however, sometimes these chains are found broken by the guardians, and this is a sure sign that the imprisoned soul has escaped from the puppet which was its dwelling place-and that it may have started on , a pilgrimage of evil works. As soon as it is found that such an imprisoned witch-soul has escaped, solemn notice is at once sent out to all Tibet to the effect that a bamo-soul has broken loose from Saskya, and the various local Lamas all through the country warn their flocks that a bamo is at large and enjoin them to be careful not to fall a victim to the wandering witch. So, for instance, they are told not to go about alone after dark, not to entertain strangers, and the like, for the bamo may assume any disguise, and any man may fall a prey to the snares of a beautiful strange woman, as any woman might be allured by an unknown man The late Lama Sherabgyamtsho in Ghoom, whose name is so well known to all students of Tibetan, used very often to make solemn announcements of this nature and warn the Ghoom people that a bamo had escaped from Saskva

A most fitting ending to this story is perhaps to be made by quoting the old Buddhist formula "Thus I have heard," but there is no doubt that the word SIRA "A" acquires an interesting new meaning through this curious tale.

There is a belief prevalent in Tibet that in every woman a touch of bamo-hood is latent (some philosophers, also outside Tibet, seem to think the same!), but in the night of the 29th day of the twelfth Tibetan month, this seed of evil will manifest most fully. The male Tibetans, however, seem not to take any precautions or perform any rites to counteract the sinister influence of this date. Evidently it is a male Tibetan who first set up this theory and it might be the same fellow who is the author of the following proverb which bears on our subject and on the words we are dealing with. It runs

য়ৣ৾য়৻৴য়ঀ৻৸৺৸৸৸৸৺৻৺ৣ৾৻৸ঢ়৸ ৣ৾৻৸৻৸য়৻৸৵৸৸৸৻৸ৣ৾৻৸ঢ়৸৻

Amongst a hundred women (at most) one khando! Amongst a hundred men (at most) one sorcerer!

That is—khando being here used in the good sense of fairy—: Amongst many women there is scarcely one extremely good, but amongst many men there is scarcely one extremely bad. In fact, in Tibet, all women are suspected of having just a little seed of evil (of the witch) in them. And so the term of reproach is not as in Europe Old Adam' but rather 'Old Eve.'

As far as the above story is concerned, it should not be forgotten that it is only a popular version of an interesting phase of religious practice, but Tibetan casuistry and theology are as a rule so subtle and well-systematised that a more theoretical exposition of the doctrines and practices alluded to might throw considerably more, if not other and new, light on the subject.

To p. 25. The quotation, s.v. ব্রিমান, l. 16: ইরা ব্রিয়ানারা, etc., is from a little tract, a prayer to Padmasambhava; entitled. ন্যামান্ত্রানারা, 'the quick mind-fulfiller.'

To p. 25. Cf. Lewin, pp. 133-134, no. 97-10, মানু স্মান্ত ( মূ ), ridiculous; zhed-ked, laughter, ridicule.

To p 26. F. F. Bell, voc., to blush; Lewin, p. 77 (64-5), ridiculous. See his example.

In a Tibetan mixed marriage such as we are here considering the custom is to call the elder son  $\widetilde{\eta}$  after the Chinese manner, instead of using the Tibetan word. This is  $\widetilde{\xi}$  in Tsang and  $\widetilde{\xi}$  and  $\widetilde{\xi}$  in Lhasa. The latter is pronounced, and sometimes written,  $\widetilde{\zeta}$  and even sometimes pronounced chö-cho, as if written  $\widetilde{\zeta}\widetilde{\zeta}$  But in the above case  $\widetilde{\eta}$  means really 'elder brother.' A girl, born in such a marriage, is similarly called  $\widetilde{\xi}$  Chinese, instead of  $\widetilde{\xi}$ . Tibetan These terms do not mean half-blood. Whether NN is used for the eldest daughter alone or for all the daughters of the marriage I could not ascertain.

It is said that every Chinaman, however humble, becomes at once a personage of importance when in Tibet, and demands to be addressed at least as 5 775, Mister, Sir (as every European becomes autornatically a Sahib in India), and feels quite insulted if addressed by the more familiar no as a liberty taken with his dignity. A Chinaman from Tibet, however, denied this. I remember once travelling in the Sunda country with my Javanese writer who met several people on the road whom he knew and whom he saluted as 'little brother' or 'elder brother.' I was puzzled at his belonging to so big a family, but found the solution of the riddle when I understood that this fraternity was not one of consanguinity at all. So 'elder sister' amongst Tibetans means only Madam, Lady, or a polite word of address to any woman of more than low status in life. In German Mütterchen for any old woman of simple status.

To pp. 35-37. The expression সুর্'র্'বর বিশ্বর্র্ব্রের তিনা occurring in the little prayer-book ব্লাইন্র can hardly mean 'a field (= heaven, world) which Kuntuzangpo has adorned' (beautified, decorated, embellished), in the sense in which one may decorate a house or room, with beautiful pictures, furniture, etc. It must surely be understood as 'the heaven blazing with the glory of Kuntuzangpo's presence in it,'a heaven resplendent with his glory. In other words, he adorns it by his mere being there, but not as the result of some activity expressed by a transitive verb. The world is adorned, but has not been decorated or beautified. I wonder if the agentive case IN may be understood as in English expressions like: 'happy through him,' blazing with diamonds,' 'laughing for joy,' and the like.

 it another meaning, namely: 'so it has been said,' 'so is the teaching,' 'that is what has been taught.' In this sense the previous words are a direct quotation and the TATA cannot be translated as 'it may be said that.'

To p. 40. In the note to any sec, for a find indifference only in connection with a negative.

To p. 44. 27. See Graham Sandberg, Tibet and the Tibetans, p. 268, who renders this word, as a technical term denoting the first of the four stages of meditation, according to Milaraspa, as 'contemplation' or 'concentration.' The second word, denoting a mental action unconnected with visual experience, does not seem appropriate. As in English 'view' has both a physical and a mental meaning, so in Tibetan 27, as a verb, has mental connotations. J. has the word as sbst. 'mystical contemplation.' The Sk. equivalent, Zif, is likewise both physical and mental in meaning. Whereas J. and S. Ch. D. have a sbst. 27. 'the act of looking,' and 'a look,' Desg. has it as 'sight' (visus, vue, "etc.").

To p. 58. See Jäschke's note on manda and mandala, s.v. 5 p. 11 b. His remark may have a bearing on the question of dāka and dākinī, discussed above. See next note.

To pp. 59 and 60. My informants, though ignorant about the detail of five and nine cushions, do know of a custom requiring the man of higher social position, greater age, more prestige, to be seated on a higher seat as a sign of respect. The difference of height, however, is in the seat itself, not effected by the placing of a number of cushions on seats of equal height.

To নাম্ব still the two following words: কুনাম্ব, saddle cloth, and নিনাম্ব, second sheet, upper sheet, covering sheet over the মেনাম্ব. The মেনাম্ব is usually thick and rough but the মেনাম্ব thin and of finer texture, like in European beds the bed sheet over the mattress. The ATATATATION is for softness and the ATATAT for cleanliness, like the loose covers of armchairs and sofas in Western countries.

To p. 62. Huth, Hor chos byun, trs. 117, note 4, reconstitutes the name Blo bzan grags pai dpal into Sk. Matibhadrakīrtiçrī. In Tibeţan mantrams, however, where Tson ka pa's name is given in its Sk. form, Sumati is used and not Matibhadra. See also p. 5 of the Introduction, supra.

To p. 64. The word \(\sigma\) \(\sigma\) \(\sigma\) (p. 3 and additional note to p. 4) should have been discussed there. Desg. alone has the meaning of the word as in our text: unthinkable, unimaginable. According to oral information, synonymous with \(\sigma\) \(\sigma\) \(\sigma\). 12, see p. 74, supra.

The elaborate entries in J. and S Ch. D. under this word and under ক্রীনাধানে মান্ত্রা need investigation.

The word \(\sigma\) \(\text{N}\) \(\text{N}\

To p. 65. The dictionaries spelt  $\widetilde{\Sigma}'$ 5'A' but the dge-rgan says that  $\widetilde{\Sigma}'$ 5'A' also occurs. Desg. has an alternative spelling  $\widetilde{\Sigma}'$ 7'A', but this seems a misprint for  $\widetilde{\Sigma}'$ 7'A'. In Tibetan books I have only seen 5' but the dge rgan is sure that the two spellings, 7" and 5' (but not  $\widetilde{\Sigma}'$ ), occur as well.

To the text. When the larger part of this booklet was in print I acquired an additional copy of the text, which proved to be different from the two editions used by me. It is of the same size and style as edition A, but printed from other blocks. We call it C. The copy is a poor one, badly printed from worn-out blocks. A collation brought no news of importance.

The reading TN N in 1. 16, however, is confirmed by this edition. Its only new reading is ABCAT for ABCAT in 1. 46.

This reading does not seem so satisfactory as the one we have followed. The full result of the collation is given below. Indistinct readings are marked with a note of interrogation.
